Recognition Day Draws Overflow Crowd

S. U. Debaters Win Praise At A. I. C.

The Suffolk University debating team finished fourth in competition at American International College April 27 with representatives from Suffolk, W.P.L., Trinity, Emerson College, and Clark taking part.

Suffolk's outstanding debaters George Saxe and Armand Der Marderosian of the affirmative team tied for first place and won the praise of the winning college Emerson's coach Haig Marderosian. Marderosian hailed the S.U. affirmative team as the best he had heard at the tournament. Both Suffolk debaters received ratings of excellent.

Representing the negative team for Suffolk were Henry Selvitella and James Lalime, both of whom received ratings of very good.

Director of Debate at Suffolk Bernard P. McCabe Jr. lauded the S.U. team and said, "Although debating against top teams the boys came very close to taking honors."

LAW SCHOOL AID
In addition to the Louis Brandeis and David L. Walsh funds four K. U. Board Trustee scholarships are offered to deserving students. The Trustees' scholarships are awarded yearly to students of Suffolk University entering the law school.

YEAR BOOK DUE IN EARLY JUNE

The 1957 yearbook, "The Beacon," is expected to be in the hands of the Suffolk seniors the first week of June, which will be the earliest publishing date in years.

Seniors expect this year's publication to be one of the best as it will contain photos of the Alumni Dance, the Senior Prom and graduation exercises. The latter two will appear in a supplement which will be delivered to the senior later in the summer.

Upsets Feature Class Elections

Chevoor New Junior Veep Benjamin, Sugrue Beaten

By BILL RABDIN

Upsets featured the May class elections as two Student Council members were unseated and a third council member seeking the junior vice-presidency was defeated.

New faces marked this year's elections, the most hotly waged campaign in years, as the Class of 1959 sent Robert McFadden to the presidency in a one-sided victory over Seymour Eisenman and Philip Doherty. For the sophomore vice-presidential battle Robert Chevoor defeated Robert Grass and John Fitzpatrick, a Council Secretary this year. Three new faces won council seats for this class as Beverly Carlson, Anthony LaConti and William Miller, in that order, defeated Kung Sampal, Ronald Collette and Julius D'Ambrasio.

In the Class of 1960's contest Joseph T. O'Hara unopposed was named president. William O'Leary defeated Paul Freil.

Top Students Are Cited, Speaker Al Capp Is Big Hit

By JAMES O'BRIEN

The wholesome philosophy of Al Capp, Armand Der Marderosian's unique rendition of the Armenian Club's war cry, the results of the hottest elections in the school's history, the unswerving awards highlighted Suffolk's most ambitious Recognition Day, May 8.

An overflow crowd of students, relatives, and friends jammed the Suffolk Auditorium to witness the festivities. The highly successful event reflected the huge amount of planning that President Arthur Walker and the Student Council put into this project.

Prof. John V. Culbert, director of student activities capably directed the proceedings which ran smoothly throughout. At the ceremony, Annie Young, Jack Lou Connolly, Jim Jung, Harvey Maffei, Don Larson, Herb Santos, John Fitzpatrick, and Julius Mikolaitis, and Terry Grynewicz walked off with a basketful of assorted trophies and citations. Curvy O'Leary, turned, sporting her glittering crown, graciously accepted her title as "Miss Suffolk of 1957." Right behind Queen O'Leary in the shawl department was actress Dorothy DeCillis of Beverly Hills who contributed her song to the program.

Came To See Capp

Everyone came to see Al Capp and the prolonged booming applause that greeted his introduction showed it. The man Oscar DeWispach proved to be as capable at the speaker's rostrum as he is with the pen. After discussing that he finds the indignities for his gorgeous gals and pretty guys, not parting with like this, he launched into a hilarious narration of his early experiences in journalism. Following his story, he quickly concluded that "if you know someone who can do the job better than you, don't tell anyone about it." Al was forced to leave early because he was trying to Micht.

Girls Recognized

Several girls also gained athletic recognition. Tracie Riley became the first winner of the Elizabeth Y. Moore Memorial Trophy. Dr. Behren, dean of Rosemary High School, basketball coach, Miss Holsh then awarded trophies to members of several girls' teams. Wanda Grigamasi, Ginny Zupolski, and Terry Grynewicz received special awards.

Professor Culbert presented the "Who's Who" certificate. This award is made in recognition of outstanding achievements by the student during his college career. Recipients were Terry Grynewicz, Annie Young, John Carmichael, Jr., Lou Hart, Jack LeMay, Lou Connolly, Don Larson, Art Peretzian, Harry Spear, Julius Mikolaitis, and Arthur Walker.

Final Deadline

Last September when this writer took over as Suffolk Journal editor-in-chief, our aims were to entertain, inform, and influence as well as meet eight deadlines successfully. With this our final effort, we have reached that eighth deadline, and we hope we have entertained, informed, and influenced you.

We started out a little scared. At first the job seemed a huge challenge, and although we published only once monthly, the school schedule never seemed to provide a break between editions. It was either Christmas vacation, mid-year exams, or Spring vacation, which had us scrambling toward the deadline.

In retrospect our first two issues appear meager. Not that we need a larger size but in May that we did and back in October, or are popping our vest buttons with pride, but we do feel that with the experience gained during the year we have certainly bettered our early efforts. True, we would have loved to have displayed a 16-page paper every month, maybe even twice a month; we would have also loved to publish an April Fools edition, but we feel that having given you two eight page editions, a twelve-pager, a ten-pager, two sixes, and two fours, we offered our best work.

We have tried to cover all Suffolk activities involving both alumni and university with the utmost objectivity. We played no favorites. Yes, we proved our talent; we erred on occasion, but it has been said often that this is only human.

The Journal enjoyed a virtual renaissance last year after a previous lapse in production so we knew we had large shoes to fill. We only hope we filled them.

As a retiring editor, I extend my deepest gratitude to the administration for its complete support of the Journal, to the Suffolk faculty, the student body, and the entire Suffolk family for their wonderful cooperation and the way they received the Journal. Without this cooperation we might still be working on edition one.

Next year the Journal will be led by a fellow who was of great help to me this year. Sports editor of this year's Journal, and a mature writer with a terrific flair for words, Dick Booker appears well qualified for job of Editor-in-Chief. If Dick receives the support I received, he surely will succeed with next year's Journal. He has the goods to deliver, and he has a returning staff to help him enjoy a banner year.

Men like Booker, Dick Jones, whom I succeeded this year as editor, and leaned on for advisory guidance, Associate Editor Jim List, and what a cartoonist he is, Jack Fitzpatrick, the best circulation manager you would ever want, made my job easier.

Reporters like the talented writing Jim O'Brien, conscientious Bill Beardon, and Candy Kreutel, a terrific kid with an even more terrific journalism future, helped fill our pages this year and kept us going.

To these staffers and the rest of my capable staff I say thanks. And to you readers, thanks. It was an extreme pleasure serving you.

MAILBOX

To The Editor:

Before I leave Suffolk University, I would like to have a vital question answered. What happened in the class elections? There was an "extraordinary high vote that was gratifying to all. This is a sign of true democracy, but I wonder if this is good."

This was a popularity contest, not a vote for the best man. If this were not true, why did only one of the Council members running for reelection retain his position? Do you really know how much time these members put into the Council as your representatives?

Every day they gave most of their time and many nights could be seen in Room 10, until about 2 P.M. hard at work. Maybe the University doesn't want the type of devoted and self-sufficient student. If this is the case, you certainly proved it in the elections.

These wonderful officers this year will never be forgotten by those who saw them in action. For all their accomplishments, they are unassuming. By themselves, knowing their outstanding character, I am sure that they will be a great help next year.

In many ways, to those who stayed them. What a job ahead of them, in this way they are repaid for being the college's outstanding leaders in years' time. I feel they will continue to guide and encourage from the sidelines.

Sincerely yours,
Arthur A. Walker

New Editor Speaks

As the Suffolk Journal grinds toward its final edition for this semester, a new editor prepares for the task of moving next year's deadline. Lou Connelly, editor-in-chief, moves into commercial pastures, while this writer steps into the Journal's top spot.

Connelly, creator of Dear Gaddy, wheeders the paper through eight hectic editions. He has gained invaluable experience and leaves a serious challenge to his successor. In eight well-edited, attractively made-up monthlies a question arises, "Can anyone do better?" Maybe, and maybe not, only time will tell.

First item on the new agenda is the business department. Dick Novak, assistant business manager, has swung into gear in the vital advertising department. Commission incentives are being used to spur on future salesmen. Increased advertisement means more revenue and naturally leads to an expensive newspaper.

The journalism class will enlarge. With a greater staff of reporters to assign news, coverage and variety will be on the upswing. This enrollment could lead to a twice-monthly product.

A rumor has circulated that the Journal is a chess shop. We'll refute this error right now. The school paper does use its journalism students for most of its functions, but it does not exploit anyone from making contributions. If students have a desire to take a crack at writing, cartooning, poetry, or prose they're invited to drop their efforts in the Journal office. This means everyone. Their work will be considered and printed according to the use the editor may have for them.

This is a brand new edition of next year's potential. A newspaper, like everything else, deserves expansion. An enterprising advance of dies. Let's keep the Journal alive. The 1987-88 Suffolk Journal hopes to stand alongside the glowing example of good newspaper work achieved by the departing journalist, Lou Connelly.

Saltonstall, Kennedy To Win Honorary Suffolk Degrees

Senator John F. Kennedy, recent Pulitzer prize winner, and Senator Leverett Saltonstall will be among the Honorary Degree recipients at the Suffolk University graduation exercises at the Boston Opera House, Sunday, June 16, at three o'clock. The exercises will be preceded by a luncheon held at the Harvard Club at one o'clock. It will be attended by 60 honorary degree recipients.

Graduation invitations will be sent to the entire student body and University alumni. It is expected that a huge turnout will greet the graduates.

Speakers for the exercises have not yet been named, but following the Suffolk tradition it is expected that some noted personalities will be present.

BUSINESS CLUB BANQUET

Dear Editor:
After attending the Annual Business Club Banquet at Pat's Restaurant on May 8, I was astonished to see that there were but two Evening School students participating in the affair.

It is my opinion that the different school clubs and organizations, particularly the Business Club, should make an attempt to include the Evening School students in their activities, or if this is not possible, the Evening School students should form a sub-division of the individual club on their own.

Sincerely,
Beverly A. Barron

Salary Hike For Faculty At Wellesley

Wellesley, Mass. (UPI)—An estimated average increase of 12.5 per cent in Wellesley College faculty salaries has been taking place during 1986-87, according to Mrs. Lucy Killbough, professor of Economics.

In an article entitled "Faculty Figures on Faculty Salaries" in the March issue of the Alumnae Magazine, she compares this with estimated increases of 7.7 per cent in nonpublic colleges with an enrollment of 1,000 students or more and 7.5 per cent in nonpublic universities.

The article declares that Wellesley salaries in 1985-86 were very similar to those in comparable institutions. Municipal universities, the best paying institutions, appear to have salaries higher than Wellesley salaries, by almost $1,000 in every rank. Nonpublic colleges with enrollment of over 1,000 have never averaged almost $1,000 less in every rank but instructors.

New England institutions also averaged less, but paid higher for instructors. The mean salaries of Wellesley postdocs in 1985-86 were $7,597 for professors, $6,291 for Associate Professors, $5,251 for Assistant Professors, and $3,837 for instructors.

The trustees of the college voted in the spring of 1986 to create a Fund for Faculty Salary Advancement, according to the Alumnae Magazine, assistant to the president. This fund will make use of unrestricted gifts and bequests to the college.

Drama Club Presents 'Picnic' May 24, 25

The long-awaited Suffolk Drama Club's version of the broad way hit "Picnic" will be presented this week in the Suffolk Auditorium with an open showing Thursday afternoon for the Suffolk student body and two evening performances Friday, May 24 and Saturday, May 25 at 8:30.

William Inge's great stage hit, which later was adapted for and Kathy Flower, as the star film presentation and he, spinner school teacher, Hank came even more popular, is the Coletta plays the part of Alan story of a college football star Seymour, Hal's friend, who enters a small Kansas town. The Suffolk Players have been to renew a friendship with a rehearsing for the play for two college pal only to become involved in numerous entanglements.

In the stage version Ralph Meeker cast as Hal Carter, the Suffolk English department. All-American hero, won raves as did his costar Janice Rule, and the club anticipates a large as Midge, the girl in the film turn-out. The production of adaptation William Holden and Kim Novak were the stars.

Top Roles. Leading roles in the S.U. production are held by George Doucet, who plays Carter; Annie Young as Midge; Jack Mc of drama to Suffolk after a Caffrey, as Howard the bache three-year absence.

An Editorial

If nothing else, the recent Suffolk class elections proved one thing. Candidates know how to advertise. Not in the past four years have the Suffolk bulletin boards been so completely blanketed by signs urging students to vote for a particular candidate by candidates.

But aside from the spirited campaigning by the office seekers one thing really stands out even more than the signs. That is the apparent diffidence of certain classes in offering candidates.

For example, in the freshman class, the largest in the school, the candidate for president ran unopposed. Ironically, this same candidate neared halfway through the year from the presidency because of what he termed "non-cooperation from the class." With no reflection on the candidate's ability to lead the class (the particular man is a tireless worker), the Journal just wonders how a class as large couldn't even offer a candidate to oppose the gentleman running.

The situation in the freshman class was more appaling when you note that for the office of secretary there was no candidate. That office was decided by a written vote. And in a rather strange paradox we found no less than six people contesting for three student council seats for that class. Three candidates who could easily have offered their time to a valuable office like secretary were defeated in their pursuit for a council seat.

Even in the junior class where students were sending their class representatives into office for the final time we had the unopposed candidate. The senior office for presidency found Henry Selvitella, this year's vice-president, running unopposed. Selvitella, a natural leader and hard worker, deserved the office, but still it's a pity that he couldn't have won the election from a rival. He would surely have appreciated it more that way. In that class three candidates ran for the vice-presidency. One easily could have challenged the candidate for president and made a contest out of it.

As we said there was a plethora of signs. The polls were crowded, and the vote was heavy. It's too bad, however, that the list of candidates wasn't longer, and we're hoping the situation won't be repeated next year.

Council Name Will Be Student Govt.

By unanimous vote, the Suffolk Student Council has voted to change the current name, Student Council, to student government effective next year.

The decision was reached at the meeting immediately following Recognition Day ceremonies. It was prompted, the council declared by the previous moves by many other colleges and universities to change the name of council to government.

Alternate Fellowship To U. Of Rhode Island To Jack McCaffrey

Senior Jack McCaffrey, outstanding Drama Club performer, and top student in the senior class, has been offered an alternate teaching fellowship to the University of Rhode Island.

The 25-year old Lowell student received the notice that he had been selected as first alternate choice to a girl student from the University of Seattle pending her decision to accept or refuse.

Twice last seven times at Suffolk as the highest honor, just six times, McCaffrey was vice-president of the Drama Club and had the lead role in the January presentation of William Somerset Maugham's "Hells Out There."

A graduate of Lowell High School in 1949, McCaffrey spent four years in the Air Force before entering Suffolk in the fall of 1953 and was coeditor of this year's yearbook the Beacon.

for the vice-presidency, and Len Abbott Mosky beat Arnold Koenigson for treasurer. The office of secretary, which was uncontested, was won by Paula de la Flor on a write-in result.

Catastrophic Wine. Ann Deacchi won re-election for a council seat for that class and newcomer George Catastrophic topped all candidates for council position. Three girls tied for the third spot which resulted in a special election held later for the final berth. Coats Kreisel, Jeanne McCarthy, and Paula de la Flor were the three candidates deadlocked. Maurice Scurac, recording secretary of this year's council and top vote getter in last fall's elections for that office, was defeated in her bid for reelection.

The campaign conducted to office seekers was considered for a council seat for that class the most enthusiastic in years according to the election committee. An interesting note was that a great majority of these students elected to office for next year had no background, nor leaflet entourage.

More than 200 students voted all told in this year's elections which was a large increase over last year's vote.

Two Sisters Winners In Speech Contest

By IRV GRACE

Five parochial high school students, two of them sisters, and another a repeat winner for the seventh straight year, have been awarded scholarships valued at a total of $11,000 by Suffolk University in the ninth annual State High School Speech Contest.

The contest, sponsored by Suffolk University in conjunction with the Massachusetts Secondary Schools Principals Association, was held in the Suffolk University auditorium April 25th. The five winners who displayed the uncanny ability of being able to stand before a group, think quickly and speak intelligently, will be eligible to participate in national speech competition later this year.

The two sisters, Elizabeth and Sylvia Nodder, both of Archbishop Cushing High School, became the first entrants of a single family to ever win the annual contest. Kevin Byrne of Boston College High School was the first non-parochial winner. The awards brings the total prize money in a row. Other winners were Hazel Graham of St. Joseph's Academy, and Charles Halem of Central Catholic High School, Lawrence.

Fifty high schools were represented in this year's contest, including an estimated 125 students from more than 25 Catholic high schools in Massachusetts.

Dean Joseph Strain of Suffolk University, director of the contest, was assisted by the following high school principals: Mr. James A. Cooke, Major Central High, Shrewsbury; Mr. John F. Byrne, St. Mary's High, Manchester; and Mr. John F. Danahan, Concord High School. The awards brings the total prize money in a row.

Other winners were Hazel Graham of St. Joseph's Academy, and Charles Halem of Central Catholic High School, Lawrence.

President Muncie's Message

In saving farewell to the graduating Seniors of the Class of 1957, I want to wish you good fortune in this world of economic, political and educational uncertainty. I say "uncertainty" because it is certain that there are subtle forces at work affecting social changes in all forms of human relationships.

You need not be apprehensive about these changing situations, because you are "educated" to cope with situations based on new arrangements of ideas. You are well versed in the fundamentals of knowledge and every so-called new concept of behavior or attitude is based either directly or indirectly on a fundamental principle. One has only to trace the current idea back to its source.

Along with serious and studious purposes in life, you will need some creative and pleasant diversions, too. So do not forget to live and enjoy life to its fullest.

Most important to all of you—always remember your days at Suffolk. As you go, Suffolk goes and as Suffolk goes, so go you. Farewell and fare you well—Class of 1957.

The main duty of a lead-out boy is to prevent a "mis-race." A mis-race can occur after a dog balks and tries to run in the opposite direction. With a little bitterness he added, "Do you ever try to catch a greyhound?"

Among the colorful people Archie encounters, perhaps the most outstanding customer is one who comes to the paddock before each race and gives a weird whistle. "Kind of like this," waaaaahhh

PLACEMENT BUREAU LISTS JOBS

By JOYCE SPERA

The Suffolk Placement Bureau headed by Mr Donald Woodward lists numerous and varied positions for those seeking summer employment. Although some of the jobs have been filled already, there are still many vacancies for late entrants.

Most abundant are the selling jobs, which are good experience for majors in sociology and education. Bay earns in community houses around Boston need college students to regulate children's activities like indoor or outdoor sports, handicraft, and personal activities.

Also the summer boarding camps in New York and the New England states are busy for young adults to supervise camp recreations. In demand are directors for activities in arts and crafts, swimming, pioneering and general consultation.

Besides working with children, the placement office also has registered opportunities for summer employment in the business field.

A Boston firm, Russell Keefe, is anxious to place persons for temporary summer work in field offices. Those employees would replace regular employees on vacation. Special training or experience such as typing, filing, shorthand is not required.

Another business opportunity is with the ice-cream companies that are hiring men to drive vending trucks for the summer season.

For those interested in job placement several newspapers are soliciting for students to work or do office work for their papers during the vacation period.

In addition to these numerous jobs the Placement Bureau is also striving to arrange with the state for Suffolk students to replace vacationing steelworkers in construction, office work and other fields.

Eight years ago, Levi Jackson, the first Negro to captain Yale team, gained gridiron and social honors on the Eli camp. In football he made All-American. Socially, he accepted membership into Yale's blindest, bluestest social clique: the Belzel Society.

I never professed to be anything. I hoped he'd go to college, but all Americans at that probably just hoped. My wife Frances and my sons were concerned with applying the essentials of life. Golf A Must At Suffolk Next Year

By JIM WALSH

It appears that next season Suffolk University will definitely field a golf team. Athletic Director Charlie Law told this writer that the response for candidates has been terrific since he issued the call about a month ago.

Due to the late start the team has not yet been able to acquire a course for either practice or match purposes. However, Coach Law stated that this year was merely a planning year for next season.

This will not be the first time Suffolk has been represented on the links. Years ago the Eagles fielded a squad that met with reasonable success.

Coach Law did express optimism about getting a golf course for a few days to look over the material that has displayed interest in the addition of another sport.

From the number of candidates for the team it seems that within a few years Suffolk may develop into one of the top collegiate golf teams in New England. It's entirely possible that amidst our classmates there is another Cary Middlecoff, or Sammy Snead.

Fine Season

The Spring semester banquet of the Suffolk Business Club was held Wednesday May 28 at Patten's Restaurant with Jesse John Carmichael presiding. More than 20 club members were on hand along with Dean and Mrs. Goodrich, President, Muriel Plummer, Director Donald Woodrow and Professor Stone and Mahoney of the Suffolk Business Administration Department. Also in attendance were Celia Letorney, Miss Suffolk of 1957 and Dr. Archer, the club's faculty adviser.

Guest speaker of the event was Mr. Roy T. Williams, executive vice president of the automotive industries of Massachusetts, who spoke on job opportunities for the college graduates in New England.

Williams related statistics to the group of the job potential in this area. He also stressed the importance of a thorough objective evaluation of one's qualifications, experience, and desired objectives before applying for a position. Following Williams' talk a question and answer period took place.

The Business Club thanks for their cooperation this year and hopes for an even more successful calendar next year.

Newly elected Business Club officers for 1967-68 are: President, Walter Detour, Vice President, Pete Morahan; Secretary, Gil Wolpe; Treasurer, Paul Moorman; Publicity Director, Celia Letorvey.

SUFFOLK NINE REGAINS ITS STRIDE

The 1956-57 sports picture passing in review. It was an ancient eight months ago when I began airing my views, opinions, and predictions for the year ahead. How many, er, how few, were sound? (Cross thumbing through those old journals, lads, the truth is I made few.)

Let's recollect, one guess I favored a winning basketball season. That gem fizzled like a dozen coaches. Names of the players and their old friends were scribbled across under and on side down. In the lower left hand corner read, in wee wee print, "Suffolk plays Lowell at 10:30 tonight at Lowell." He meant, R.C. Clark, Worcester Tech, and Norwich dunked them while a sharp St. Anselm's five bombed the lavender kills off them.

Poor Attendance

It's true, attendance was seen only to the Washington Senators, but a supporter can't drop the ball through a hoop or clear rebounds. Section 3099, Art. 96, of the NCAA college rule book explicitly states, "Any bystander, whatever his sympathy, who willfully obstructs the conduct of a game, shall be suspended from the premises before he can say 'two points.' And there's a mouthful for our law student readers to consider.

Sports seriously, could stand a shot of gentlet. That blood in ether can only come from you, yes, you, you the people. But hold on Harry, there is a defect in our programming of events. First, the majority of Suffolk's games are on the road. Not even fanatical Yankee supporters hike out west to see their beloved Bombers perform.

Hark, for remedy, more home games. For each road game a home and home series should be organized. If the Cambridge Y.M.C.A. can't oblige them other playgrounds must be sought. Let's get the Rams in Boston next season.

Noiseless Publicity

Secondly, noiseless publicity precedes each game. Few students are aware of what the team is up against. The Journal can't keep folks posted on a monthly basis. Isolated posters have been tacked on the cafeteria walls heralding an impending clash, but you can't expect coffee swigging, doughnut munching collegians to lift their eyes to spot them.

Some of those advertisements should be hung in the Art Festival alongside the rest of the abstract creations. One sign listed 19 names. The squad had a dozen competitors, including Tom Collins. The Ram swishers stumbled through a poor campaign. Although they played 500 ball, they pulling an old side down. In the lower left hand corner read, in wee wee print, "Suffolk plays Lowell at 10:30 tonight at Lowell." He meant, R.C. Clark, Worcester Tech, and Norwich dunked them while a sharp St. Anselm's five bombed the lavender kills off them.

This type of publicity would not draw flies in a slaughter house.

How About Publicity?

Hence another remedy. An adequate publicity department comprised of sports minded students. Men and women excited in their team effort who could keep the student body and faculty informed as what's going on with the team.

All these measures generate interest in school activities, as well as boost from the general public. Athletics are part of America's culture which is some people like it or not. They are not aesthetic or European, but they are exciting. They prevent juvenile delinquency and build bodies. In general, they are honest which is more than can be said for some of these outside activities. They teach fair play and individual merit. They deserve more interest from the school's students and faculty.

Regardless of the over all record the Rams had their individual ace, Edie Moore targeted in a brilliant job all year. His rebounding and scoring was enough to dump a strong Lowell Tech team. Capt. Art McElroy, a junior, started in on defense and defense in many games.

Some Honor Students

There were other stars who have been mentioned in previous space. Some were honor students. They jeopardized marks to play ball. Others played because they enjoyed the game. "None played for money" or fame. They played because they liked the game. Keeping in mind the original premise of opportunity to see the game, all things being equal, more support is asked in future games. If sports are to survive at Suffolk greater support is needed within the school. Criticism is food for a dying art. It gives

JOSEPH P. REILLY FUND

Former law professor Joseph Schneider has made his annual contribution to the "Joseph P. Reilly Scholar ship" fund. Doctor Schneider, who holds an honorary degree from Suffolk University, is a former president of the Massachusetts and Boston Bar Associations, and is nationally known in legal circles. He set up the fund in the memory of his late classmate and law partner, Joseph P. Reilly, 31.

life. Praise encourages, but in difference means death.

In case you didn't notice Jack Backlog produced a winner with a hustling freshman team which posted an 11-3 mark, sparked by Joe Houghton. Bob Simeone, Sam Blumie, Frank Cobby, Earl Kestel, Lou Farrell, and George Catalano, they targeted in a good job. All hope to graduate to the varsity next season. With this group joining an experienced varsity, Charlie Law perks to ward a good season.

Baseballers Bolled

The spring drought has failed to abate the baseball team's energies. The Ram owners bagged five wins in their first nine starts, three again a five crop of freshmen have excelled.

Freshmen, in general, elbowed their way into several school activities. The amateur display of the Suffolk group have so called upperclassmen flipping eyelashes.

This surprising rebellion of suppose to be, timid Freshers means one of two things. A current crop of aggressive lashed blessed rookies have assaulted the campus or veteran students have grown complacent.

Prediction Dept.

I think I'll drop a few prophesies for my successor to fulfill next year.

The Red Sox will pull the trade of the year. Bill Conrade, Norm Zandlin, and Joe Cronin for Al Kaline and Harvey Kuenn.

Chuck Brown will assault the Griffin family ether in a sports magazine or a scandal mag, that's the procedure nowadays.

Ted Williams will display menacing gestures to upgrate full students of the game. Although he'll be leading the league in everything but man nuts.

Coukie Lavagetto, newly named manager of the Senators, will be admitted to a Washington hospital with ulcers.

Brilliant Mound Staff Paces Law's Young Rams' Club

Suffolk's youthful baseball crew regained stride after opening day's amiable loss to Lowell. The Rams rebounded with a tight 6-3 upsurge past Worcester Tech and backed into more victories up in fine starts.

Charlie Law, and George Dunnet, dual strategists behind the Ram attack, lean heavily on a sharp mound staff. Sophomore Mike Noonan gained status with a blazing one hit shutout over Westworth. A scratch single off the middle that prevented a no hitter as Boston set the Tech meatus down 2 to 0.

Three victories rest on the immediate right arm of sophomore Ray Tadlacher. The curveballing Beavers had went the route for an 11-5 crumpler over Quonset. Gallagher turned in a win against Worcester Tech, pitching four hit ball over the final six frames. His third effort sent Shovelball to defeat 12 to 16 again. Gallagher played the bookend leader role.

Another Sophomore

Edolph Jadenberg, a third sophomore, straddled out of the Ram bullpen to squash a Nassau. Me, upspring for the fifth Suffolk victory.

Bouncing out Law's hit crops are a pair of tender front liners. Frank Pagan and Jerry Cobby. Pagan, a tough Stoneham product, offered a neat red hot three against Harvard's JV team, but suffered a stiff like left knee in losing 5 to 2.

Shabby defense has led to nightmares with the Ram coaching department. Beavis Ennold, 15 Boston Teachers, and refused the Teachers an earned run but lost 2 to 1. He allowed four hits, but two Rams muscled set up seven tainted runs.

"Beat Yourself"

Every game we lost, gulched Coach Law, we beat ourselves. We're a young club this year. I mean on the average, seven fresh men in the starting lineup and due to inexperience, errors are bound to happen.

The team boasts a prod stock of freshman and sophomore talent sprinkled with a few vet veterans. Pete Wyethok, shortstop, captains the team. Wyethok played outstanding ball for the past two years and backbones the current unit.

At times, the clubs only see an obscure Suffolk duties with Tony LaFont, a junior, and freshman Paul Smith. Joe Lehigh and Lou Farrell, Lehigh displays a strong arm and has delivered several timely blows.

Houghton Heats Hitter

A freshman basketball sensation, Joe Houghton, walked to the plate twice and delivered two tremendous blasts, one a triple and the other a Run bagged. Houghton is battling Al Blasi for the regular first base job.

Vin Aguirre, another novice, seems set at second base as does George Catalano, behind the plate. Catalano, All-Boston backstopper from Everett, has lived up to his high school promises.

Manager Law and Dunnet banked their young outcrop performance. Law said, "This is one of the best squads I've seen at Suffolk in years. Errors in clutch spots have been our major weakness. But, as I said, we're loaded with a hustling but inexperienced array of fresh men. Another year and this club will hold its own with the best colleges around the state."

RECOGNITION DAY

Mr. Bernard McCabe, faculty adviser to the Debating Club, praised this year's team and remarked that Suffolk has a won 1961-62 season in debating. He presented trophies to past president Jim Jung and President Armand Des Maderosian. I was born at the gentle insistence of Mr. McCabe that Armand make it so.

Journal Keys Awarded

Mr. Colburn presented Lori Connolly with her Suffolk Journal key. Then the editor in chief, after thanking the administration, the faculty, and the students for their support, presented keys to members of his staff. Recipients were Dick Jones, Dick Booker, Jim List, Harry Spauld, John Kymnietz, Steve Burg, Phil Iuliano, Bill Beardon, James Walsh, Joyce Spers, Dick Novak, Candy Krentel, Terry Grynewicz, Anne Young, Don O'Brien, Mike Chess, Dave Howard, Charles Zarogian, and Ivy Grace.

Colburn presented student council president Arthur Walker with the traditional gavel and key. President Walker gave his final speech before relinquishing his office. In it he thanked all for their support. He thanked the members of the Student Council and singled out Vice President John Carmichael, Jr. for particular commendation. He also thanked Candy Krentel for her invaluable assistance to the Council. Al Capp received a double-hatted citation from the Student Council, being named the outstanding man in his field as well as being given the first honorary membership in the Council.

Father Kron, Newman Club Chaplain, presented awards to Club President James Kelly, Vice President John Daly, and Treasurer John Sullivan. Father Kron remarked that Newman clubs in this area always look to Suffolk for leadership.

Marketing Honor To June
After congratulating all those who received awards, Dr. Archon presented the American Marketing Award to Jim Jung.

Julius Mikulatis, president of the Honorary Society, presented the Phi Beta Chi awards. Keys went to Bill Miller, Tony LaConte, and Ronald Collette.

John Clements, president of the Suffolk Alumni Association, pointed out that the group's aim is to help students aid themselves after graduation. He added that the association needs new blood from this year's graduating class. He singled out President Munce, Dean Goodrich, and Miss Dorothy McNamara as having aided the alumni in every way they could. He presented the Alumni awards to Arthur Walker, Russell Mahony, and Terry Grynewicz. The Board of Directors of the Alumni Association presented Al Capp with the first honorary membership the group has ever bestowed.

Veteran Club president Joe O'Hara presented the Veterans Club awards. He gave special citations to President Munce, Dean Goodrich, and Miss McNamara for their help to veterans attending Suffolk. Then Arthur Walker announced the long-awaited election results.

Special words of praise are in order for Joe Blanchette who sang "The Lord's Prayer" early in the program and for Hank Colella who sang "I Got a Kick Out of You." Mrs. Terry Cruganda led the girls' class Club while Tom Reardon conducted the Beavers. Both of these groups were well received. Louie Joe Marderosian was the accompanist. Because of Mel Elia's fine work at the tape recorder, the entire program has been preserved for posterity.

At the conclusion of the festivities, refreshments were served in the Recreation Hall. Later, President Munce met with relatives and friends of the students

JEANNIE WINS COUNCIL SPOT

Jeannie McCarthy won the special three-way runoff for the third seat of the freshman class for the office of student council. The special election was held last Monday.

The class elections found Miss McCarthy, Paula de la Flor, and Candy Krentel vying for the third spot for the office of council. Miss de la Flor, who had won the office of secretary of the Class of 1960 on a write-in vote, will assume that position.

Heading Home

Looking back on the past year, it is was one of the funniest, most productive and enjoyable ones we had at Suffolk. Many good times, including the various class dances, the Alumni Dance, parties, basketball games, and capped off by Reunion Day and the Reunion Recognition Day. Most observers felt that was the smoothest, most effective program Suffolk has had in years. And while on upset, and the talent on AI Capped at Reunion Day. Memories Are Made Of This

By LOU CONNELLEY

Most of us arrived in the fall of 1953. The remainder of the Class of 1957 which will be bidding farewell to Suffolk in less than a month came on the scene in their sophomore or junior years. All, however, have fused into one happy class, one which shares joys and lasting memories.

As senior president Russ Mahoney reminded this writer one night recently as the two of us to freshmen classes, our fresh started to roll as a class the night of the Barn Dance in Lexington our sophomore year, and we haven't stopped rolling since.

True words, Russ. As a class we can truthfully say without expanding our chests or patting our backs we rank highly with past graduating classes.

Accomplished Plenty
Our treasury showed such a surplus from the yearbook ads that we staged a free senior prom the first in recollection, we say that we played a large part in the success of the 1956 Gold Anniversary Dance and the 1957 Coronation Dance, our yearbook will be a top notch book and should give us many fond memories of our college days; the success of our dances at the Hotel Brunswick prompt ed other classes to hold their functions there; some of our seniors devoted even weekends after a one-year absence to preparation of yearbook and dance matter.

I'm sure Mahoney and other active workers in our class will agree that we didn't get off to a fast start at Suffolk which left more the gala Garden Art displays. Miss Mahoney, more time in the library, more knowledge of our own Annie Young, in prom she was crowned. Miss Suffolk, she was crowned. Miss Suffolk, she was crowned. Miss Suffolk, she was crowned.

Final Fling

Summertime, again. Most of us have been attending school courses. We returned for the final time in September, the winter. The work ahead was going to be tough, the yearbook, the prom, dances, graduation, surely a busy calendar. But, one way or another, we got it done.

The social calendar started with the Thanksgiving Dinner at the Boston City Club. Yearbook work and more yearbook work, hustling ads, portrait sittings, for the seniors. Drama Club, for one act plays. In January with three of our class, Jack McCaffrey, Annie Young, and Hank O'Neil, distinguished themselves as Hespanians, the pre-Chinese, basketball, a first of all with senior John Carmichael leading the cheerers, the Alumni Dance with Moore fashion, James O'Neil, Art Walker, engineering in Garry, Miss Suffolk, the free prom

BURNS NAMED

John C. Burns, a military aide to Gov. Foster Furcolo, was named the fifth member of the Redevelopment Authority of the new Salem Square redevelopment project in Worcester.

Active in civic affairs, Burns has been active town council since 1952, and is a former president of the Worcester County Casualty Adjusters' Association.

Dean McDermott's Message

Once more with supreme swiftness an academic year comes to a close. You, all of us at Suffolk University Law School, mark another milestone in our professional lives. For some, however, it is of greater significance, and it is to those "members of the Class of 1957" that this message is addressed.

You have run the race, and now within your reach is the prize we bring and we ardently sought, the degree of Bachelor of Laws. May you bear this accolade of Alma Mater with honor, and in the years to come may your lives reflect the qualities of honesty and diligence emboldened on her seal.

As you go forth to join the alumni of Suffolk University Law School, the good wishes and high hopes of the faculty are with you. "Go, alma mater."

REQUIEM TO AN EDITOR

Jim Long had a fantastic day for his wedding. May 2 was friends and the sun smiled on Mr. and Mrs. Long. May it continue through life. Recognition Day was the scene of excited faces and spirited students. Well-organized and conducted, it was an extremely rewarding morning for Suffolk students. All Capp is really a "Great Man".

Is anyone looking for Matt Green? His new address is Revere Beach. Notice the town and dark places, however! But Matt "mugs" were on the stage May 2, but the success were those given by the Council proxy to the members. Following tradition, the mugs will be filled by the incoming council members.

God, the spirit of the rite and roasts takes up most of "The Baron's" free time. But I'd how many Royal Specials No. 1 didn't you know that Monday? It's all a matter of jolly. I suppose, but you wouldn't need a cash would you?

The future Mrs. Jung will have to add a few shelves and lifts. Look! Let Jimmy's plagues and awards. Any more and a new wing will have to be set aside! Our basketball captain and editor nearly came to blows on Recognition Day in the Re- Hall, because they were identical sport coats. The reward compliments you both.

It's time to Jim. Last for his cartoons this year. Imagine "No Captain Needed" and "The God Here" in color.

WATER SKIING APPEALS TO REPORTER

By MICHAEL CICCO

Our Northern New England rivers, streams, and lakes, are now free of winter ice. These crystal clear waters will soon more call to their shores a multitude of enthusiastic summer visitors. For another season the vacationing tourist, fisherman, and week end sightseer, will vacate the sweltering cities and suburbs of Massachusetts. The writer will be one of them.

Will Surge Northward

Particularly, in July and August, a mass of lighthearted humanity will surge northward. They will invade the "wood lands" of our "green" states in quest of a gay amusement area or a silent fresh water cove.

The indispensable boat and trailer, accompanied with a sturdy pair of water skis, will lag behind the cavalcade of travelers. Water skiing has come to the lakes and rivers of New England as a gay sport associated with summer fun. It is a fast and exciting sport that appeals to a wide variety of people. It offers the tourist and hardy sportsman a healthy and vigorous form of recreation.

The thrill of skimming across the water is no longer confined to the southern states. When it was the same became linked vaguely with "freaking" play boys and "picturesque" movies.

But today water skiing is popular throughout the nation, and its expense is usually within the reach of most everyone.

Spurt grows in N. E. Here in New England where we are blessed with a large number of navigable bodies of water, the sport has grown by leaps and bounds. Tourists, not only from New England, have taken water skiing to their hearts. They enjoy it, and year after year, return to the scenic splendor of our mountain-fringed lakes. It has become as much a part of New England as was the first aerial tramway in New Hampshire. "A car that spans great valleys and settles gently on a mountain top."

In July, at Pausus Bay on Lake Winnepesaukee, the National Ski Championships are held. This event can be considered the World's Series of New England water skiing. It features the top professionals of the sport. Thousands of vacationing sightseers gather here to witness men and women from various sections of the country compete. Those spectators who are fortunate enough to see the performance are rewarded with a fine display of competitive skill.

With a boat, cruiser or skiff, all roads for many individuals will lead to a placid lake of their desire. In their anxiety to be "free," to discover new thrills afloat, they still clog the fast highways, frighten the natives of Maine, New Hampshire, and Vermont with reckless driving and unexpected stops, and at last, near some secluded body of water, line the shoulders of some twisting country road. Here they will launch their craft to fish or picnic.

LEGALLY SPEAKING

By PHIL IULIANO and CHARLES ZAROUKIS

Universally, law professors maintain, if not the pupils, that law students are woefully lacking in a sufficient pre-legal education. They criticize the inability of students to think properly and to speak in clear, forceful, attractive English. It appears that the difficulty lies in the university. This is not to say, however, that the university is at fault. Perhaps this is true to some degree. But the law schools and even the secondary education system must share equally in this blame. Now, to remedy the students' ignorance of grammar, his want of style in expression, a meager vocabulary, his unexercised and undeveloped mind, and with his inability to think properly, a formula must be found to overcome this intellectual indolence.

Study Humanities

These writers are inclined to support the opinion of Justice Learned Hand who declares that the proper pre-legal education is to be found in the study of the humanities—the history, the literature, the art, the philosophy of the past. It is essential to the education of citizens in a democracy. Freedom of speech, of the press, of religion can only be properly understood in the historical passage of man's continuing battle for liberty. Often any reference by the law professor to Plato, Locke, Jefferson and the Constitution, or to Adam Smith will be lost.

But the scholarly fire is more likely to burn if the subjects are freely chosen, rather than be compulsory. Selection of subjects is subordinate to the arousing of broad intellectual interests and carefully constituted powers of thought and expression. Students should not be trained, as in the past, to absorb certain information, that will enable them to carry on a general law practice. On the contrary, they should be educated to enrich their mind not only in the study of law but for the enjoyment of life. The student is to be a member of a learned profession, a leader in government, and aid to humanity.

Law Capacity

Thus until there is a proper understanding of the needs of the future lawyer and the adoption of a program to supply these needs in the university, many students will continue to lack the capacity to assimilate masses of facts, to arrange them and use such knowledge to solve legal problems, and to express themselves, both orally and in writing, in good English. This continually will fail, further more, to realize the importance of understanding their environment otherwise, the limited man will prevail.

HEARSAY

P.S. We also suffer from the above malaise.

Congratulations to Assistant Professor John Nolan upon his recent engagement to Miss Louise M. McLaughlin. The same is also extended to first year student Alan J. Alford who married Miss Janet Zella Cohn last April.

Carl Sandburg wrote:

Why is there always a secret singing

Charles Lindbergh and Paul Byrd will soon become students at Suffolk Law School when student Dick Jones will give the title of Mayor.

Good luck is extended with the coming of first examinations to the few students who need it. "Good luck to the few students who need it."

To the departing seniors who are underclassmen all, saying to have to go a long way to fill your illustrious shoes. Now that you've made your mark at Suffolk Law, we're sure that you will make the same high mark in the profession. To but you goodbye here is a momentous verbiage which you will surely be able to recognize. "Get it?" "No, not to kill."

Y. sees a shadow in an alley. Thinking it is Y. he shoots, but it was only a lamp post. Is this an attempt on an intent to kill? "It's a bomb," reports the good cop. See her.

"When I was your age and going through Law School, I had to burn that midnight oil every night without letup."

"I don't know the answer," he'll look it up and tell you next class."

"People, people, people, never back is behind and don't ever say it."

A reminder in the Way and Duke Series members, the at-ter exam party will be held following the last exam May 31 at the club inside. It is open to members and invited guests.

P.S. Its free, says Treasurer Moriarty.
